NUMBER 42.

We Mourn the Loss of Profits.

GREAT FIFTY CENTS ON THE DOLLAR

SALE OF CLOTHING

We are going to make some improvements in our store room after January 1st. The contract is signed and sealed with the contractors—consequently we are compelled to sell our stock or pack it away. We prefer selling it at a sacrifice.

NOTHING RESERVED.

Every suit of Clothes, every Overcoat, every Pair of Pants marked in plain figures. We will just split them in half. This means 50 cents on the dollar. The cheapest sale of fine ready made clothing in Kentucky.

Our business is not conducted by fakes and guessing schemes. The man that's selling watch chains on the street corner for $1, throwing in a watch just to show his generosity, needs watching. "Bunco Steerers," "Razle Dazzle" tricksters and green goods sharps always promise great returns from small investments. Intelligent minds are on to the racket; and take no stock in such humbuggery. 'Tis value they want.

100 CENTS WORTH OF GOODS

FOR 100 CENTS IN CASH

Is what we give the people. But at this sale

100 CENTS WORTH AT 50 CENTS ON THE DOLLAR!

Every article in our establishment is ticketed at the lowest price possible. The stamp of durability is on every garment. If you have not dealt with us, ask your neighbor, who has. We invite you to our store, feeling assured that you will be pleased with our garments and satisfied with the matchless values we offer.

TO THE PEOPLE OF KENTUCKY.

An Address From the Louisville Commercial Club.

The Louisville commercial club desires most earnestly to call your attention to the importance of having Kentucky properly represented at the World's Columbian exposition at Chicago in May, 1893.

The state must erect buildings in which to show its resources, and much hard and patriotic work must be done before the doors of the grand exposition are thrown open. Other states are making elaborate preparations to astonish the people of the globe by their magnitude and growth. In agricultural, timber, live stock, and mineral wealth, and in many other respects, Kentucky has no superior. All citizens who have the good of the commonwealth and their own interest at heart, are urged to assist by act and precept, in doing all things needful to the end that our state may be seen in its best light when brought into comparison with the other commonwealths. That we may be helped in this work, all counties, commercial bodies, alliance, grange, labor, and other reputable organizations of every character, are requested to send not more than six or less than four delegates, each to a State world's fair conference, to be held in the exchange hall of the board of trade of Louisville, January 20-21, 1892, under the auspices of the commercial club. Mayors or other proper chief executives of cities and towns are invited to participate in the conference as delegates. Each newspaper in the state is invited to be represented by a delegate at the conference. Counties are requested to hold mass meetings at once, said meetings to be called by the judge of the county court, or in his absence or failure to do so, by the county attorney or a committee of citizens, select representatives and forward the names of delegates to the secretary, so that preparations for the meeting may be conducted intelligently. If deemed best, delegates may be appointed by the judge of the county court or by the county attorney, in lieu of a mass meeting.

Let us unite as one family and secure every possible advantage from the rare opportunity offered to advertise our state. Low railroad rates will prevail, and the conference, which will be addressed by men of national repute, will be one of interest to all.

Louisville's Industries and other interests are to be simply cared for at the fair through private and municipal enterprise, and it is principally desired that our interior products and resources should receive the attention of the conference. OWEN GATHRIGHT, Jr.,

LUCIEN ADKINS, Sec'y. Pres.

Capital Notes From Sentinel-Democrat.

It was a neck and neck race for the speakership between Hon. W. M. Moore and Hon. Harvey Myers, which shows that both are good men and have a host of friends. Col. Moore had a margin of only two votes. Col. Moore is an experienced legislator and will make a good speaker. He carried almost the solid vote of Eastern Kentucky members.

Hon. J. M. Pieratt, of Morgan, made a creditable race for doorkeeper of the senate, considering the short time in which he had to work. Mr. Pieratt is a man of solid worth and generally gets what he goes for, but in this instance he did not begin in time.

W. O. Mine was elected enrolling clerk of the senate over three formidable opponents, which is evidence that his splendid work as enrolling clerk of the last house was appreciated.

HAZEL GREEN, KY.:

BRIEF EDITORIALS AND NEWS NOTES.

Gov. Brown's message to the Kentucky legislature is said to have been one of the ablest state papers ever read before any general assembly of the state. The governor points out many reforms and directs the attention of the legislature to the importance of enacting laws to bring them about. He shows that the distillers in only a few counties pay the taxes they should, and suggests that a penalty be imposed upon all county attorneys who fail to collect said taxes. All are agreed that the message is just the thing.

Tennessee convicts to the number of 120 have been returned to the Coal Creek mines, and a company of 100 soldiers are encamped near the mines to see that the convicts are not interfered with by free miners. The soldiers are armed with a Gatling gun and a mountain howitzer for use in an emergency. The troops have new United States uniforms, leggings, mittens, etc., and are provided for against the weather. A car load of ammunition has also been sent to the camp.

The alarm along the Texas border over the Garza revolution is becoming intense. Garza is known to have 1,000 or 1,200 men with him, many of whom are Mexican regulars who joined him after murdering Gen. Lorenzo Garcia, their commander. Capt. Hardie, of the United States forces came up with 200 of the bandits and drove them into the chapparrel. Garza threatens to take Fort Ringold, and it is not improbable that he may do so, in which event the United States will suffer severe losses.

Speaker Crisp certainly acted very badly in not making Mr. Mills chairman of the ways and means committee, and his failure to do so certainly gave the Democratic party a black eye, though it will tend to enhance Mills in the estimation of the people. This act alone demonstrates the unfitness of Crisp for the position he occupies, and before congress adjourns that body will have realized its mistake in placing a man of such little ideas in the speaker's chair.

Treasurer Hale created quite a sensation at Frankfort last week by sending Gov. Brown his resignation and notifying him that he would not qualify on Monday last. All sorts of rumors were rife as to who would succeed him, but subsequently he concluded he did not want to resign, and all speculation was thus knocked into a cocked hat.

Georgia is going dry so far as saloons are concerned. On Monday licenses were issued to 25 saloons in Atlanta where there used to be 289. At Savannah 50 saloon keepers failed to make the blind good and dropped out. The saloons of Augusta are also to be reduced at least one-half in number.

The appeal from the commercial club of Louisville, which we publish on the first page of our paper, should command the attention of every man in this section interested in the development of our resources, and we commend it especially to the consideration of our county judge and county attorney.

Since the death of Senator Plumb, of Kansas, it has been currently reported, and certainly believed by many, that ex-Senator John J. Ingalls would be appointed to the vacancy. Gov. Humphrey, however, has appointed ex-Congressman B. W. Perkins to succeed the dead senator.

The Bourbon News entered upon the twelfth year of its existence last Friday, and bids fair to improve as it grows older, though it is now one of the spiciest sheets in the state. Here's wishing Bro. Champ a happy and prosperous new year.

Gov. R. P. Flower was inaugurated at Albany, N. Y., Friday, and a large crowd was present to see the ceremony.

MORGAN COUNTY.

Real Evolutions.
Now rolls the year of '92.
Some people now good deeds they'll do
On new year's day they all begin.
They fixed that time for previous fun.
To fix a time and then begin.
Appears to me uncommon thin.
Why not do right because 'tis best.
On Christmas day and all the rest.
The vows you make are not to men.
God knows you now as well as then.
And when you said I will not drink,
You should have taken time to think.
That boasting vows without a will
Will breed a lie and fool you still.
I write the above for one and all.
For broken vows are nothing small.

Dorsey Pieratt has been very sick for several days, but has now about recovered. Mrs. Ada Ainsparger has also been on the sick list, but is about up again. T. E. Johnson's little boy, Bertie, has been quite ill for a few days. With these exceptions the health of the town is good, but several deaths in the country the past week, as follows: On Dec. 31, William Manning; on same day, infant child of James Davis; on the 2nd inst., wife of Abner Lawson; same day, infant child of Hiram Spence.

J. M. Pieratt and son, Stevie, left this morning for Lexington, where Stevie will attend college and get all the wrinkles in book-keeping.

A Mr. Colegrove, at Washington, gets the mail route between this place and West Liberty.

Hugh Beatty, the smiling musical agent of Beattyville, was in town last week.

J. M. Perry, one of Morgan's brightest school teachers, was in town Saturday. Howard Wilson, from Montgomery county, was in town last week.

H. M. Faubin made a coffin on each of the three first days of this year. Woodie Cull and Miss Maggie Spence were married last week.

Maytown Miscell.
At a special term of Squire W. C. Hill's court held here Saturday, the docket was: Commonwealth vs. Melvin Wells, assault and battery on the person of A. V. Nickell. On motion of I. W. Rose, defendant's attorney, the court dismissed the case. Commonwealth vs. same, for carrying concealed weapons. The jury, after hearing the evidence and half-hour's speech from Mr. Rose, and instructions of the court, returned a verdict of not guilty.

At a meeting of Maytown lodge, No. 656, F. A. M., held Dec. 26, 1891, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: E. B. May, W. M.; J. T. Sexton, S. W.; A. C. Swango, J. W.; Jordan Wills, Treas.; J. C. Swango, Sec'y; R. A. Childers, S. D.; O. W. McNabb, J. D.; L. T. Bolin, S. & T.; James E. Wright, Chap.

If we fail to send up new subscribers we will try our hand at drumming for your stationery department. Find enclosed $1.75 for 500 envelopes. Send to R. A. Childers. What puzzles the people here is how you manage to get them up in such nice style for so little money.

Plenty of whisky in this vicinity yet. It is thought that moonshiners furnish a great deal of this curse. This is leap year and I trust the boys may stay at home a little now.

Miss Sally Howard's school closed last week with satisfactory results. The children all became very much attached to their worthy teacher.

Since the beautiful has covered mountain and dale everybody seems to be cheerful.

And a good lamp must be simple; when it is not simple it is not good. Simple, Beautiful, Good—these words mean much, but to see "The Rochester" will impress the truth more forcibly. All metal, tough and seamless, and made in three pieces only, it is absolutely safe and unbreakable. Like Aladdin's old, it is indeed a "wonderful lamp," for its marvelous light is purer and brighter than gas light, softer than electric light and more cheerful than either.

In fact he says it is one of the best kept offices in Eastern Kentucky. Taylor, as he is familiarly called by his friends, is our nearest neighbor, and we have reason to remember many courtesies from both he and his wife. Mr. Caskey is a successful merchant and farmer, and a Republican as sound and true as any who sail under the colors of the present administration. May he live long and prosper, and always be postmaster—if he wants to.

KITCHENS, O. Jan. 1, 1892.—Mr. Editor: Enclosed please find $1, for which send me THE HERALD, for I can not do without hearing from my old Kentucky home. Sorry I can not send you some subscribers, but as I am the only Kentuckian that I know of in this country the paper don't interest them as much. What has become of the Stillwater and Beattyville correspondents? Oh, how I wish you had a writer from St. Helena. Come along, old friends, and help make your country's paper interesting.

Mrs. Mary Evans. [Mrs. Evans was a Miss Houshelt, and was born and raised in the Clifty neighborhood, we believe.—Editor.]

A special from Stanton to the Courier-Journal, dated Jan. 4, says: "A man named Hagerty had brought a suit for damages against Judge J. W. Lilly, and employed Hon. Rodney Haggard to defend him. During his argument Mr. Haggard made a statement reflecting on Judge Lilly, who at once rose and called him a liar. Mr. Haggard picked up an inkstand and hurled it at Judge Lilly's head. It struck Judge Lilly's attorney, Mr. Phillips, and glancing, struck Arthur Carey, of Louisville. Judge Lilly was ready to go at Mr. Haggard, when friends interfered and the court adjourned. It is feared there will be more trouble."

Aunt Exey, the venerable mother of Judge George W. Carson, whose illness was mentioned in this paper last week, died at the home of Judge Carson on Friday at midnight, and her remains were laid to rest in the family burying ground on Judge Carson's farm Saturday evening. Aunt Exey was a good woman and many will be the regrets expressed when the news of her death is known. She was aged 86 years.

The attention of our readers is directed to the advertisement headed "Public Sale," which will be found on this page of our paper. Mr. Scobee has engaged in the lumber business at Winchester, and any one who desires to purchase an elegant blue grass farm may secure a bargain by attending this sale. Remember that it will be sold on the 20th inst., and if you want it be on hand to bid.

Col. E. Polk Johnson is now printing the Capital as a daily, and it comes to us check full of legislative news. The last issue we had contained the governor's message as a supplement, which shows that Col. Johnson is full of newspaper enterprise. May he live long and prosper, and the Capital return him much capital to invest in the Booneboro turnpike company, or otherwise.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Day returned Monday from Mt. Sterling, where they were summoned when Mrs. J. G. Trimble's illness was first announced, and where they remained until after her death and funeral. The sympathy of the community goes out to Mrs. Day, who was overcharged with grief before her mother's death, and this last stroke has well nigh prostrated her.

Henry Godsey, who spent the holidays at home with his father and mother, left Monday morning for Danville. Centre college will some day point with pride to the fact that Henry was one of her scholars.

A. H. Stamper, the rising young attorney of Campton, paid our office a pleasant call Wednesday. He came over to take depositions in a case on Lacy creek, the particulars of which we did not hear.

Dr. J. C. Hollan was awarded judgment in the Powell common pleas court, Monday, for $500 damages against John Burgess for throwing whisky in his eye. He sued for $10,000.

Campton Curraney. Isaac Elkins has gone to Texas to buy him a farm.

Robert L. Carroll has accepted a position as clerk in Elkins' store.

Douglas Evans killed an owl a few days ago that measured five feet from tip to tip.

Harvey H. Stamper left a few days ago for Louisville, where he will attend medical college.

Kelly Fuika came home Thursday night from McNabb, where he had been to locate a saw mill.

Prof. A. F. Byrd delivered one of the ablest speeches at the Christmas tree we ever heard in this place.

Rev. R. D. Biven passed through here yesterday en route to New Spring church, in Lee county, to fill his appointment.

G. T. Center and Prof. A. F. Byrd returned Friday from Stanton, where they had been attending common pleas court. There was a social party at G. T. Center's a few nights ago. About 50 young people were present and all had a fourth of July time.

I mailed my letter to THE HERALD last Monday, but suppose it never reached THE HERALD office. Surely there is something rotten in Denmark.

Justice Spalling is making the best police judge Campton ever had, and with such a marshal as J. P. Hall violators had better look out. Let the good work go on.

W. R. Duff, Esq., recently purchased of Isaac Elkins his storehouse and lot, for which he paid $750. He will move to it in the spring and will open up a butcher shop and market house.

Dr. James H. Stamper, who says he would rather part with his wife than THE HERALD, reports the following on the sick list: Prof. F. A. Savage, Mrs. Elkanah Huff and Mrs. Arkilla Bailey.

Christmas has come and gone, and we have been launched out upon a new year. Let us do better during the year 1892 than any year of our past lives, and if we never live to witness the closing of another year, be prepared to ascend upon ray clouds and enter heaven's blissful clime, where white winged angels flutter beneath the rainbow arches of a glorious clysmian, and where the city towers the great white throne like some snow-clad mountain, sunken, bathed and irradiated in gorgeous hues. BOONEVILLE, Ky., Jan. 2, 1892.—Dear Sir: I this day enclose $1 in cash, for which I want you to send me THE HERALD, as I think it is the best paper for the mountains of Kentucky ever published. Hoping you will confer a favor by sending it in the next mail, I remain, respectfully, &c., FANNY ROSE.

MARIETTA, IND., Jan. 1, 1892.—Spencer Cooper: Enclosed find $1, for which send your valuable paper for one year to the P. O. address above, and oblige.

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 20, 1892, sell at public auction on the premises, my lot of 387 ACRES lying on the Winchester and Mt. Sterling pike, eight miles from Winchester and seven miles from Mt. Sterling, near Thomson Station on the N. & A. M. & R. R.

The farm has on it two good dwellings and a good tenant house; one of the dwellings is a new house of eight rooms and bath, and the other is a two-story house, with a large porch, and a large lot of land, with a large orchard just beginning to bear. The farm is well watered with ponds, pools and springs; 237 acres are in blue grass, 60 acres in wheat and the remainder in tobacco and corn. It is rented last year for $2,500, and can be rented out for one year for $1,000 at the same price. It will be sold as a whole or in tracts to suit purchasers.

At the same time and place I will sell the following personalty: One 2-year-old stallion by Robert, Jr., dam by Greenwood. He was broken last year, and with but little 20 broke mares, three years old; 3 mares; 11 yearling steers; 9 calves; 1,300 barrels of corn with suitable tools for feeding stock; 100 bushels of wheat and Mt. Sterling turnip seeds, par value, $100 per share, and which pays an annual dividend of 4 per cent. Many other things not enumerated here.

This sale is positive, and the farm will be sold by 10 o'clock, and the personalty by 1 o'clock on the day.

"WE ARE SELLING OUT!"

and this is our reason: We want to buy more goods.

Don't you see that this business. We are not in business merely for pleasure, nor for health, but for the profit, and the way to make it profitable is to sell everybody. And the way to sell everybody is to sell cheaper than anybody. And that is what we are going to do—for Cash or Country Produce.

We have extended the Credit System until we are compelled to close our books, and we respectfully ask those who owe us to come in and pay part or all of your note or account. Trusting you will heed this, we remain, Very respectfully, &c., H. F. PIERATT & CO.

Do You Need Money?

If so, you can get something better than dollars from us. The completion of the K. U. R. R. to Jackson has cut us off from a large wholesale trade heretofore had by us in several counties east, and left on our hands an immense stock of goods, which we are compelled to unload, and in order to do so we are determined to make prices do the work, prices which will make our patrons happy and make competition howl. We offer to Country Merchants extra inducements, and guarantee to them lower prices than they ever got before. We are overstocked and must unload. Remember we will duplicate any bill, with freight added, either wholesale or retail, east or west, north or south, up hill or down. We are now receiving cash for our note or account. Bought for cash at bottom bargains, as will fill every department. Now, fresh, reasonable, choice and cheap. We can astonish you with covered with goods at half prices. As the prices we name merely give us a chance to get our money out of the goods, we cannot afford credit. Goods will be sold for cash only, or country produce, live stock and country claims taken in exchange.

We have opened a new department under the charge of Miss Laura Rawlings and Miss Lulu Day, which is fully stocked with fine Millinery, Notions, Ladies' Furnishing Goods, Wall Paper, Carpets and Oil Cloth, School Books and Supplies, Pictures and Frames etc., etc. Miss Rawlings is a thoroughly competent Milliner and Dress Maker, and we offer you a City Stock to select from. A Very Bad Case.

East Newmarket, Md., March 4, 1891. My daughter had epilepsy so severe that she would have 6 or 7 fits every 24 hours. Immediately after using Paster Koenig's Nerve Tonic the spasms decreased in number, and in less than two weeks from taking the first dose they entirely ceased. Before using this medicine her mind was very weak, but now mind and memory are fully restored. I am a ready believer of the efficacy of this medicine.

HAZEL GREEN, ILL. KEY

AT THE DAWNING.

Out in the bush of the morning breaking.
There came a twitter of startled birds;
I turned to see if the chick, awaking,
The first faint herald of dawning heard.

Sweet eyes looked love into mine that love them,
As the black voice up little light above them,
Tartling the morn with their matin hymn.

Quiet we lay and smiled to each other,
Over the side of the little bed,
Till the child said softly: "I hear you, mother."

"Darling, I did not speak," I said.

A happy light on her face came playing;
"Yes, you are speaking—I hear, I know—
Your eyes are talking! I see them saying."

"Dear little girl, I do love you so!"

Then she nestled down to her restful sleeping,
Laying a pink palm 'neath her cheek,
With childish trust for the mother's keeping,
Of the love that needed not to speak.

The birds sang on, and their praise, a swelling,
Floated up a prayer on their melody,
And the peace that passeth human telling,
Felt on my little child and me.

"I know that I move you and control your actions, and more is hardly likely that they will know it. Since there is no one to tell them but you, and they'd never take your word for anything, not if you were to swear to it, do you see I have got the advantage of you, Seraggs, and if you want to do anything just go ahead. But you are making a great fuss about nothing, anyhow. Wait until I make an attempt against the girl, won't you?"

"If you have no designs on the girl, Pearson," asked Seraggs, "will you please say what your purpose is?"

"Why, what should it be, except to make all the money we can out of Green, and I was intend to make it out of every other settler."

"Then how is it you do not find it necessary to report yourself toward other settlers as you toward the Greens? Why is it you find it necessary to go there so often?"

"I supposed this was a free country, Seraggs, and that a man did not have to explain to other people the reason why he chooses to go here or there. But since you have questioned me, I don't mind answering it. I got to John Green's occasionally because I like Louise. To be honest, frank and confidential with you, Seraggs, I'll go further and say I love her. I've sworn the truth when I say that, so help me God. I do love Louise Green with all my heart and soul, and never have and never shall love anyone else. And now having said this far, I'll further love her, and I've sworn that she shall be mine. She loves that Paul Marham, but he shall never have her. I cannot win her love, but I can get her in my power, and force her to come to my arms and submit to my caresses, and by heaven I will."

"Harry Pearson, beware! This is going too far, and they shall be warned," said John Green, who had been listening from a great deal of suffering, perhaps. But he that is as they, I will not reveal any secret. It wouldn't be safe. I will say, though, let those lots go and make your money secure."

"Isn't it secure where it is?" John asked.

"You heard what I said, Mr. Green," Seraggs replied, "and ought to be able to draw your own conclusions. I say take your money out of the lots and make it safe. That's all I have said to you, and it's more than I can say or will say to any other man. I have a reason for advising you to this step, and strange as it may seem, it is altogether for your interest that I do it."

"It's a little strange, indeed, Mr. Seraggs," John said, with an incredulous shake of the head, "but you should feel such an uncommon interest in my welfare. I cannot understand why you should make so great an exception in my favor. Why am I alone selected from all your customers to receive the benefit of your advice? Am I more to you than any of the hundreds of others who have invested in these lots?"

"You are right, Green, you are not more to me than the others. But it is not that which influences me. There is not a man among all my customers who is not as good as dead, and you, were he placed in the same position, would be likely to talk and argue. Here is a customer for your lots. Take my advice and sell out."

"No," said John, "I'll keep them. I know your object, Mr. Seraggs—I can see through it perfectly. Those lots are destined to sell for an enormous price, and you know it. You see a thousand dollars or so in them, and you want them. You are the man who proposes to buy them. You are, Mr. Seraggs, and you can hatch out some plausible scheme to get me to sell them. But I'll not be taken in by you."

Seraggs rose and walked the floor for a minute or two, then stopping in front of John, said:

"John Green, I wouldn't pay you fifty per cent. on the investment you made in those lots. I don't want them, and wouldn't buy them at any price. But this is useless, so I have no more to say to you. In less than six months the front of this town will be what I have said, and you will say that for once Seraggs advised you aright. Good-bay."

These last words of Seraggs made a slight impression on John, and he took the office in a halting state of mind. Once or twice as he walked down the street he stopped, half inclined to go back and see Seraggs' office.

"If I sell out," he mused, "I will make a large profit, and besides being able to redeem my farm will have a couple of hundred dollars left towards building a home. It may be that Seraggs is right, too, and that by holding on I will lose all. Perhaps it would be safer to sell."

Then on the other hand he would recall Seraggs' reputation as a schemer and an unprincipled chisel, and noting the improvements that were under way and the activity with which other people were taking up "bargains" in real estate, he would conclude that he was right, and that Seraggs only wanted to get the lots himself because there was a big outcome to him. Reasoning pro and con, he finally decided to keep his lots, and accordingly went home.

Take my advice and sell out. I can take your money where it will be safe, and where it will bring you good interest. Make the change then when the mortgage on your farm is due you will have the money to pay it off."

But John shook his head, saying: "You can get no interest to equal the profits on the lots, and besides I would rather not turn surer."

Seraggs was silent for a little while, during which he looked hard at the girl. Then looking up he said:

"Green, I have a purpose in advising you as I do. I do not like to say what that purpose is, but I assure you it is an honest one, and besides it is well founded. For your own good I advise you to this step. Let your money out of these lots, and keep it out."

John made no reply, but looked at Seraggs incredulously. The agent saw that he had made no impression, and he continued:

"Will you promise upon your oath, Green, never to whisper a word of what I am going to tell you?"

"Yes, if it is right that I should not." "I don't know that it would be exactly right, but I know it would be to your interest, and would, if you acted on it, save your money and save you from a great deal of suffering, perhaps. But he that is as they, I will not reveal any secret. It wouldn't be safe. I will say, though, let those lots go and make your money secure."

"Isn't it secure where it is?" John asked.

perfectly satisfied that he had acted for the best.

The town at Paradise Park kept rolling on and on, reaching out farther and farther until the winter came on and the severe storms and cold weather put a check to all improvement. That winter was the worst one since the town was a great deal of snow, so that people ventured out but little, and as a consequence the excitement at Paradise Park died down and the sales of real estate stopped.

The invested felt no uneasiness, however, being assured that with the return of fair weather the boom would set in again with renewed vigor. In the spring the railroads were to be located and work was to begin on them at once; and all the other public improvements were to be got under headway, too; so then the real boom was to come, and only a few short months of inactivity was to be come between.

Thus the winter passed, and by the middle of March all the snow was gone from the plains, and the tender grass began to appear. The boom at Paradise Park revived, and while real estate transactions resumed their wonted strength, the sound of the hammer, the saw and the trowel were heard on every hand. The business blocks, the frame brick, were started up all about the center of the town, while residences were being constructed in every quarter. Unprecedented activity reigned, and Seraggs predicted that the population would have twenty thousand inhabitants within the year, and that to come true. But day after day passed, and no more outward construction of railroads or other improvements was made. Yet the people were strong in the faith and kept the boom rolling.

CHAPTER XII. A REBUSTED BOOM.

A month passed and then the great boom at Paradise Park received a sudden check. A railroad line was located through that section of Kansas, but it came not to or through the place. It ran within five miles of the town, and the company located a depot and laid out a townsite at the point nearest to Paradise Park.

As soon as this fact became known as a certainty the great boom burst and the entire western metropolis lay flat. The sale of lots stopped short, and within three days the value of real estate ran down until it was impossible to sell lots at any price. The noise of the hammer, the saw and the trowel, and unfinished buildings were left so.

Then a new town on the railroad was started under the name of Magic City. Seraggs, the inevitable, shook the dust of his boots and moved down to Magic City to inaugurate a boom there, and he succeeded so well that within a few days there was a grand rush of people to the new town. Seraggs' old plan of making a rivaling that of Paradise Park began to rear. The people who owned houses at the old town moved them to the new, and within a couple of weeks the town of Paradise Park was a thing of the past. The new town in the once proud infant wonder of the world was blotted out of existence, and nothing save a few old foundations and the painted cover slakes remained to mark the site of the embryo metropolis had stood.

The collapse had been sudden and unexpected, and hundreds of poor settlers who had invested their little all in the boom, making a raise, were suddenly left to the fact that they were ruined, and that their hopes and their money had gone down together in the great wreck. Some who had a small amount of means left behind them, the new town in the hope of retrieving what was lost in the old, but hundreds had nothing left to invest, and all they could do was to moan and curse and curse Seraggs.

This latter pleasure, however, was denied John Green. He could mourn the fall of Paradise Park, but he had no occasion to curse Seraggs, for he had never invested in the boom, and he was willing to bear his own loss alone, and he slides shoulder a large part of her husband's. She saw nothing in the future outlook so gray before her, yet for John's sake she affected to see none, and the more he regretted, the more cheerful and hopeful she became, and the more lightly she treated their loss.

"I am glad, John," she remarked one day, "that you take such a happy view of the situation. The loss of the money, and the knowledge that it was my fault, is enough to make me despair myself, but you are not, and if you had blamed me as I deserve to be blamed, I believe I'd have gone mad."

"I am convinced,"

HOME HINTS AND HELPS.

—New Orleans Molasses Candy: Take one cup of New Orleans molasses, one cup of sugar, a piece of butter the size of an egg (sweet, not salt), and a tablespoonful of vinegar. Boil these together for five minutes, then add the mass to a large bowl of cold water, and stir hard when dropped into cold water. When done stir in a teaspoonful of soda, and beat well. Pour into buttered pans, and when cool cut into slices. If desired, it is desired, should be added a little before pouring out to cool.—Ladies Home Journal.

—To Cure a Beef Tongue: There is no better method of curing beef tongue than the following: Make a brine by adding to three gallons of water four and a half pounds of salt, three-quarters of a pound of dark-brown sugar, and three ounces of saltpeter. Let all boil together, and skim; then remove the brine from the fire, and add one-fourth of a teaspoonful of cayenne, and when quite cold put in the tongues. They will be fit to use in a week, and will be found of a color and flavor to satisfy those who are experienced and fastidious.—Good Housekeeping.

—Marble Veal: Boil, skin and cut a pickled tongue as soon as possible and beat it in a mortar with a pound of butter and a little pimento, until it is like a paste; then pour four pounds of lean veal and pound it in the same way; then put some of the veal into a large potting pot, and lay some tongue in jumps over the veal in different parts; then nearly fill with veal; press it down hard and pour melted butter over it. When served cut it across in thin slices; put them on a dish and garnish with curled parsley. Keep it in a cold place, and serve with a paper.—Boston Herald.

—Cardinal Jelly: Soak one ounce of gelatine in three-fourths of a pint of water for one hour; then add one-fourth of a pound of white sugar, the juice of two lemons and the whites of two eggs whisked in a little cold water; let settle a few minutes, then pour through a flannel jelly-bag into which a small stick of cinnamon has been broken. Strain through this two or three times to get the flavor of the cinnamon. When it is quite clear add nearly half a tumbler of red currant jelly. Pour into a mold to set. When required turn on a platter or silver dish and garnish with white flowers.—Housekeeper.

Figured Silks.

Black silks patterned in bright little set pompadour sprigs continue to hold a prominent place in popular favor. The light weight silks of this sort that were popular in the summer have given place to those that are heavier, and the colors which make up the figures are brighter and more numerous. Even more convenient because of the ease with which they are worn, is a dress of this kind than the standard black silk of time-honored fame. It is also effectively trimmed in black lace, being one of the most popular garnishes of the present season. A neat dinner costume of this black and white silk. The skirt is made over a plain silk foundation and is laid in flat plaits meeting in front and is fan-plaited in the back. The plaiting is shirred under the plaits in front and cut out at the neck. Inside the V-shaped opening are two folds of cream crepe de seise, and the double Medici collar is lined with the same material. The soft plaits which form the front of the bodice are covered with lace and an epaulette of lace finishes the shoulder of each sleeve. At the foot of the skirt is a wide band of lace corresponding to that used on the bodice.—Chicago Post.

Chicken Pie.

Chicken pie with this recipe is excellent cold. Save the neck, the liver of the wings, the gizzard and the liver of the chicken, and the feet. Pour boiling water over the feet, leave them a moment, then pull off the outer skin and nails. After these are removed, put the feet with the other parts. They are quite important, as they contain the gelatin which forms the gravy around the chicken when the pie is cold into a delicious jelly. Stew the skinned feet, wing-tips, neck and giblets, which have been well cleaned, in just enough water to cover them; add a slice of onion, one of the carrot, and let the water simmer gradually till it is reduced one-half; add a few drops of lemon-juice or a teaspoonful of tarragon vinegar, and season with salt. If necessary, pour the gravy into a bowl, and cover the chicken in the pie and cover it with a paste, and bake it until the crust is a fine brown. It is better to strain the gravy before pouring it over the chicken. Some people who are fond of hard-boiled eggs and rings made of the whites.—Good Housekeeping.

Velvet Girdles.

Girdles for night and silk gowns are made of blue velvet in a single piece about six inches wide. The edges are narrowly turned over and hemmed with blind stitches. Three to four inches of shirring draw the front down to a width of only five inches, and two apple whalebones are set in casings between these shirrings. The fastening is made in the back by four buttons and eyes welded under two little meeting frills, each an inch wide. The velvet doubled at the ends of the girdle. Shirring and whalebones similar to those in front are down the back and sides of the frills. Such girdles are made of all kinds of velvet, and in favor that they are often seen on basques and coats as well as to complete round bodices.—Harper's Bazar.

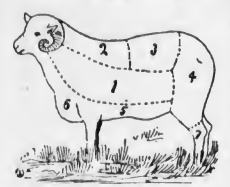

AGRICULTURAL HINTS.

CLASSIFICATION OF WOOL.

How the Different Qualities in Each Fleeces are Divided.

Short staple domestic wool is divided into eight grades, namely, Picklock, which is the first; prime, choice, super, head, seconds, shir and breech. Worsted wool is classed downward from the blue neat, brown, breech, downright, seconds to abb. The diagram shows the manner in which the different qualities in each fleece are divided.

The best wool is from (1) the shoulders and sides of the animal; that from the withers (2) is irregular and filled with burrs; from the loin (3) is shorter and coarser; still shorter and coarser on the hind quarters (4); the belly wool (5) is short, worn and dirty; flat on the front of throat (6) has the same defects, and the wool from the head and shins is short, stiff and straight.

A further classification is into lamb's wool, Loggett and wether wool. Wool that has never been cut tapers regularly from base to end and is fine and silky in texture, the tapering edge especially having these qualities in highest perfection. The first clip from a sheep not more than eight months of age is of the highest quality, and is called lamb's wool. If permitted to remain uncut until the age of twelve or fourteen is reached, the staple becomes much longer and somewhat coarser, but retains the silkiness due to the thin tapering ends. All subsequent clips are classed as wether wool, and are coarser and stiffer, cutting the fiber causing it to thicken at the end—Mer-er.

CLOVER SEED MOTH.

Observations Just Completed at the Iowa Experiment Station.

Observations upon the clover-seed caterpillar and the moth into which it develops have been in progress at the Iowa experiment station during the past season, and the conclusions reached are recorded in bulletin 14. The moths, which are about one-third of an inch across when the wings are spread, are dark brown or nearly black, and are marked with curved, silvery lines along the hind border, with eight white, silky lines along the fore border of the fore wings, which in common with the hind wings are delicately fringed with fine, engraving. The under side of the wings are shining and silky and have a greenish tinge in certain lights. The moths were noticed flying from blossom to blossom in the latter part of May, and in the early part of June they were pursuing freely. An examination of the clover blossoms about the 25th of June showed that over one-half of the heads examined were infested. The larvae are greenish-brown, cylindrical, less than one-third of an inch long, which begin near the base of the blossom and eat their way upward, destroying the flowers as they go. From the point of growth it appears that there are at least three broods yearly. Examinations of hay cut early in June showed that all the larvae were killed by the heat and pressure resulting from storing it. This fact suggests that the remedy for this insect is to cut and store the hay and all patches of clover at this time. (The larvae live some time in loose bunches of cut clover. This will effectively prevent their appearance in later broods and is also found to be protective against the depredations of clover seed midge.)

POULTRY PICKINGS.

Fresh water, renewed daily, is essential to the health of chicks. Foul water, sick fowl.

A country writer avers that for keeping up health and producing eggs nothing equals "good sound grain."

It is a habit more than hunger that makes fowls run between meals to the feedbox, or to those who feed them. Feed only at certain hours as much as they can eat up clean.

Do not neglect to take the milking fowl away from the rest of the flock, even if you do not know that she has a contagious disease. No change should be taken on letting an epidemic get the start in the flock.

It is not always the finest looking hens that lay the best. You can generally count on eggs from one whose comb is large and bright, and the egg bag large and hanging down. She is also usually inclined.

A STUDY OF ROOTS.

The Habits of Garden Plants Investigated by Scientists.

An interesting investigation of the root habits of certain garden plants was made at the Geneva station by digging a deep trench alongside of each specimen to be examined, and then gradually and guardedly washing the earth away by a spray of water through a hose.

The following result appeared in the case of the Edible beet, one of the tap-rooted species, which grows largely above ground:

The tap-root was traced nearly two feet. Branches started out from this at intervals during its entire length; no roots appeared above the tap-root. The branches were traced a distance of two feet horizontally from the tap-root. The fibrous rootlets were very tender and delicate, and though not very numerous, extended over an area of about twelve square feet. They often extended upward from the branches, and in some cases appeared to reach the surface of the soil.

The root system of the carrot, either in long or short varieties, is comparatively small. The tap-root soon tapered into a mere filament, which extended downward but about sixteen inches.

The horizontal roots seemed to extend a little more than a foot. The fibrous roots, started chiefly from the tap-root, though a few had their origin near the base of the fleshy root. These extended both deep and shallow, some reaching the surface of the ground and others sinking into the soil as deep as the tap-root.

Onion roots were more concentrated than those of most other crops raised in the garden. They extend about ten inches in depth and about the same distance horizontally.

The greater part of the roots seemed to be beneath a circle of eight inches in diameter, and in the center of the plant in the center. There is no tap-root. The roots that start out from the base of the bulb are very numerous, and these give rise to very many branches.

The latter, however, do not subdivide, and are usually quite short.

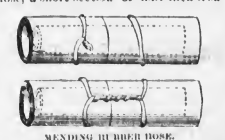

In the case of an early cabbage—which showed a decidedly less extensive system than the root-chief—the roots were traced to a depth of about twenty inches and a distance of eighteen inches on either side. The main root was quite thick for a distance of about six inches, below which it divided into many roots which tapered for a short distance and then became fibrous, ceasing to taper.

Fibrous roots in the upper layers of the soil were not uncommon, and some appeared at a considerable depth. Such studies as these are of practical value to the farmer, and serve to show the importance of a well and well cultivated soil, sub-soiled, for root crops, or of planting in a soil that is easily penetrated to a considerable depth by roots. —Andrew H. Ward, in Boston Globe.

SIMPLE HOSE MENDER.

A Device Which Is Not Patented and Therefore Everybody's Property.

The accompanying engraving gives views of opposite sides of a section of hose sent us by John McGowan, Orange, N. J., to illustrate a simple method of mending hose practiced by him for years. After triumphing evenly the rugged edges of the break in the hose, a short section of half-inch iron pipe is inserted as shown by dotted lines in the end. Then a piece of galvanized iron wire is wrapped around the hose and fastened as shown at the left of the upper figure. The wire is then twisted for a few inches as shown in the lower figure, again wrapped around the hose and fastened as shown at the left of the upper figure. This mender is not patented, and the materials for making it are inexpensive and easily obtainable.—American Farmer.

Raising Pigs in Winter.

Fall pigs can be fattened in winter by giving them summer conditions. They are fattened in summer. Dribble down the pen and fill in with sawdust or straw. Let the earth come up to the ears, and then lay the bedding. Keep a thermometer inside and the temperature at sixty degrees. Wheat bran, milk feed, vegetables, cut clover and corn, the last pork brings most in spring, and this excess usually is sufficient to pay the extra care. And then the work occurs when the farmers have the most time to spare.

Turnips for Cattle.

Turnips are not a very valuable feed for cattle, but they are easily and cheaply produced and hold out largely. They are "good for a change," and they are told by scientists that they assist in the digestion of other foods. Turnips in the garden should be in moderate quantity to milk cows, but after milking, will not favor the milk.

In Turkey's knew as much as the despised geese they would fly very far south in the fall.

A FAMOUS LAKE.

Strange Curative Properties of the Waters.

Early in this century Antoine Dufour, a prisoner in an Indian camp on the margin of a lake in what is now Southern Washington, fell into the water while trying to escape from his captors. Dufour was a sufferer from rheumatism, else the accident would not have happened to him. The bath instead of stiffening his joints seemed to have a healing effect, and the Frenchman tried the experiment of immersing himself daily in the waters with wonderful results. He soon had the free and painless use of his limbs. Nevertheless, when he made his escape, Dufour spread the report of the curative properties of the lake. But in the thirty settled wilderness of that time no one was very much interested in healing waters.

For three years, years little was heard of Medical Lake, as it is now called. In 1872 Andrew Le Fave took up a quarter-section of land where the village of Medical Lake now stands. Le Fave knew nothing of the virtues of the water until his sheep, which were troubled with a skin disease, were cured by soaking their throat in the water, which he used to wash his sheep, and it left him. To-day the fame of the lake has spread far and wide. It is situated on the Columbia River plateau about sixteen miles south of the mouth of Spokane, and is 2,500 feet above the level of the sea. The stratum of the country round about is basaltic. The lake is sixty feet deep, half a mile wide and a mile long. The water is of a greenish color, and no plants grow near the water. Animal life is also absent, and an unbroken silence broods over the dark pool. The water has a specific gravity of 1.018 and holds so much alkali in suspension that after bathing the body feels as if it had been oiled. A shampoo for the head is easily had by rubbing the water in with the hands. When the water is drunk, it is found by a strong bitter altholy taste from the shores. Strange to say, a species of terrapin lives on the bottom of the lake, and in its depths, but never rising to the surface. A creature, half fish and half lizard, that is known as the "walking fish," the Mexican axolotl—Chicago Interior Ocean.

A gentleman visiting a school had a book put into his hand for the purpose of examination a class. The word "inheritance" occurring in the verse, the questioner asked the class to find the youngsters as follows: "What is patri-mony?" "Something left by a father." "What would you call it left by a mother?" "Matrimony."

Which—Man or Shirt?

Has the man grown, or has the flannel shrunk? Usually, the shirt is to blame. No, not that, either—but the way it's washed.

Flannels ought to be washed with Pearlina. If you're buying new ones, start right. Have them washed only with Pearlina (direction on every package) and they won't shrink. As for the old ones, Pearlina can't make them any larger, but begin with it at once and it will keep them from growing smaller. It will keep them from the wear and tear of the washboard, too.

As one wash is sufficient to ruin flannels, great care should be exercised as to the use of the many imitations which are being offered by unscrupulous purveyors of peddlars. Pearlina is never peddled.

Rose & Swango desire to inform the public that they are agents for the most successful preparation that has yet been produced for coughs, colds and croup. It will loosen and relieve a severe cold in less than any other treatment. The article referred to is Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is a medicine that has won fame and popularity on its merits, and one that can always be depended upon. It is the only known remedy that will prevent croup. It must be tried to be appreciated. It is put up in 50 cent and $1 bottles.

Didn't Mother Miss.
When Sam Jones was preaching in a Western town some time ago he was annoyed by a young man who was whispering to his girls. Finally the preacher could stand the interruption no longer, so he looked straight at the young man and said: "I will pause until the young man in the back of the room gets through talking." The silence was intense and every eye was on the young man, who was still whispering to his girl. He had been so busy that he had not caught the preacher's censure. Mr. Jones repeated his remarks, and this time the young man heard him. Not an instant did he hesitate, but he immediately tried to square himself. While every one was watching him, he looked squarely at the preacher and said: "Go right ahead, Mr. Jones, you are not bothering me."—Toledo Blade.

A Danville Verdict.
Jesse Dunn writes as follows: "I have used Quinn's Ointment for the 12 months on thoroughpin, wind puff, curbs and splints. It has never failed me. Horsemen should not be without it. It would seem as if Quinn's Ointment was an investment. Sold by Rose & Swango."

Consumption Cured.
An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma, and all Throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested his wonderful cure on thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellow-men. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge, to all who desire it, this recipe, in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, W. W. Kyles, 529 Powers Block, Rochester, N. Y.

Henry Ward Beecher has often referred to a remark which he once heard in the White Mountains at a hotel where he was staying with his family. On the piazza one day a girl near to him said to her companion, a damsel of her own age:
"Oh, Maryanne, I do think I am tired of this life."
The other smiled self-superiorly.
"Yes," she said, "something down the folds of the frock in question."
The girl then went off to the mountains, better than any other I ever had on."
N. Y. Mercury.

The senior proprietor of this paper has been subject to frequent colds for some years, which were sure to lay him up if not doctored at once. He finds that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is reliable. It opens the secretions, relieves the lungs, and restores the system to a healthy condition. If freely used, as soon as the cold has been contracted, and before it has become settled in the system, it greatly lessens the attack, and often cures in a single day what would otherwise have been a severe cold.—Northwestern Hotel Reporter, Des Moines, Iowa. 50 cent bottles for sale by Rose & Swango.

Early Arranged.
Dashaway (to hostess after the evening party)—I want to ask you if I may have the privilege of escorting the two Cutis sisters home? They are, by far, the prettiest girls in the room.
Hostess—Certainly, my dear Mr. Dashaway; I was just about to ask you would you be so kind, for there is such a scarcity of gentlemen. But (nervously) it is rather awkward for you that there are two of them.
Dashaway—Oh, that's all right (a moment later, the sister Miss Cutis).
My dear Miss Cutis, I am going to escort your sister home; I will be back for you in half an hour.—N. Y. Sun.

Mr. Wm. T. Price, a justice of the peace, at Richmond, Nebraska, was confined to his bed last winter with a severe attack of lumbago; but a thorough application of Chamberlain's Pain Balm enabled him to get up and go to work. Mr. Price says: "The remedy can not be recommended too highly." Let any one troubled with rheumatism, neuralgia or any such give it a trial, and they will be of the same opinion. 50 cent bottles for sale by Rose & Swango.

A Make-Weight.
At Viohy, our friend Goutreau got into conversation with a pater familias, who said among other things:
"I have a couple of marriageable daughters, one giving the oldest 50 francs for her dowry and the second one 100,000 francs."
"She is your pet child, I suppose?"
"No; she spoils it,"—Le Patriote.
